WETS CARRY BRUTON.

A Big Majority Against Local Option Thursday.

The result of the local option election in Bruton District, York county, was no surprise, except in the size of the majority for "wets." But much work was done by both sides-the "wets," having an oyster roast, ct cætera, to draw the were on the ground pushing their respective sides.

Local Option not Permanently Deteated in Bruton.

We do not care to discuss here the causes of the seeming defeat of local option in Bruton Thursday, but we do wish to make one or two plain statements to our friends.

First, we want to say than we are not in the least discouraged. The best citizens in Bruton are not discouraged. It is only a question of a liatle time when complete victory shall be ours. If the citizens of Williamsburg will stand together on the fifth of April and carry this city "dry,,' a law can be very easily gotten through the legislature that will Fannie B. Hunt et als. to Edmund W. | cover Bruton District. This is the con-Harwood, 202 acres of land known as sensus of opinion of some of our most prominent citizens in Bruton and Wil liamsburg. Such a law will be better than local option for Bruton for the reason that it will be permanent.

I want to say also that if 90 per cent, of our men in this city will stand to their pledge we will gain a great victory, and the darkest cloud that ever hung over Williamsburg will be lifted.

COUNTY COURT.

The Trial of Roland Holmes and Sarah Beech.

County Court, Judge Sydney Smith presiding, convened Monday with the largest crowd in attendance seen here in many years. The court room was packed all day Mondap and Tuesday, the occasion deing the trial of Roland Holmes and Sarah Beech for the murder of Jim Beech, Sarah's Husband.

The case was taken up promptly and all day Monday witnesses, were on the and several contracts were also admit- stand. The prisoners, who were tried together, pleaded not guilty to the indictment. They were represented by Jas. A, Fields and O. Arthur Neal, two colored lawyers from Newport News. Commonwealth's Attorney R. T. Armistead made a splendid and vigorous fight for a verdict of murder in the hrst degree. His argument was an able one. Fields, one of the colored lawyers for the defence, also made a good argument for his clients.

The case went to the jury at about 5 o'clock and in less than an hour had is a non-resident of the state of Virginagreed upon a verdict of eighteen years is, it is ordered that he appear at the in the penitentiary.

"How could you face war?" I said to a trembling old man of 65, who had volunteered to fight. "I prayed to the Lord." he said; "I gave myself and my family to His care. And it was wonderful to see how He strengthened us There was not a tear. Our daughter earried my rifle, the other my bandoller, and my wife (she is 03), carried my bag. They were all quies; you would never have thought I was going away. I did a soldier's duty; I did what I had to do. It is strange, in the heat of a fight you do not care what happens. You shoot, and you do not care. How it should come that a thing like that can happen I do not know. but it does happen to a man. But. oh it is a bitter thing to think of afterward! When I think of what I saw all round me I shiver with horror. Believe me, I can scarcely keep the tears out of my eyes at night when I think of the sufferings I have seen. I grieve as much for the widows in England as for those of our own people. I know I am a prisoner, and must be obedient," he goded. "I have my parale. and can goo little way out of the camp and sit down quietly to read. I am thankful they give me that liberty." I said a word of sympathy. "It is well," he answered, gently. Toys for English Cbildren. The ingenuity displayed in the production of penny toys is marvelous, novelties coming out nearly every week. The foreign producers are quite alive to the fact that a child soon tires of a plaything and wants another; so they keep up a supply of things bright, novel and ingenious. Moreover, each toy has its season. As the summer approaches, when children delight to be out of doors, the Germans send us musical rollers and jingling cars; and for the long winter evenings they supply novel indoor games and intricate puzzles -amusement for many evenings-at the cost of one penny. Then the United States sends lead pencies wood blocks and colored toy books; the French, dolls and tin toys, as well as all the more expensive articles of this class. However much or little the Germans may have sympathized with the Boers, the toy manufacturers did not fail to profit by the struggle. They dressed dolls in khaki and caricatured Mr. Kruger-his top hat and pipe were exaggerated, and his

The kodak is being regulated in Washington. Use of it is forbidden not only in the white house, but about the grounds surrounding the mansion. To take snapshots around the capitol is possible only on a permit obtained from the sergeant at arms. The use of cameras in the senate and house galleries is positively forbidden. Likewise the navy yard and gun foundry are closed to amateur photography. And now the propriety of still further limiting the use of the lens and film, except upon license, is being agitated.-Washing-
